I. Introduction

Pursuant to Rules 1.4 and 11.1 of the California Public Utilities Commission's (CPUC or Commission) Rules of Practice and Procedure, the Greenlining Institute respectfully moves for party status in the above captioned proceeding.

II. Interest of the Greenlining Institute in this Proceeding

The Greenlining Institute advocates for better economic opportunities and outcomes for communities of color.¹ As such, we are keenly interested in the opportunity to explore EPIC investment opportunities, tactics and strategies in designated disadvantaged communities identified in R.15-03-010², other disadvantaged communities and low-income residents.³ Through engaging in this proceeding, Greenlining aims to maximize benefits from clean energy research development in low-income and disadvantaged communities. Low-income and disadvantaged community residents in California are disproportionately people of color.⁴

Greenlining intends to advocate for guidelines, investments, reporting requirements, and other provisions that best fulfill this directive.
